Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election of Group II, claims 8-14 in the reply filed on 5/4/05 is acknowledged. Because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)).

Specification

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informality: on page 6, line 11, "FIG. 7A" should be changed to --FIG. 7 B--.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claims 8-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, Applicant recites a carrier plate for bearing or holding a glass substrate and then proceeds to provide details to the substrate in the present claims as well as in depending claims 9-14. It is unclear whether Applicant intends to claim the substrate in combination with the apparatus. Clarification is necessary.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Art Unit: 1734

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 8-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over ASPA (the Admitted State of the Prior Art) in view of Kido et al (JP2003-149645).

The ASPA, as set forth in the instant specification on pages 1-4 and in Figs. 1-4, teaches or suggests a rubbing apparatus for LCD comprising the combination of a carrier plate for bearing a glass substrate having an on top alignment film thereon, the substrate including a visible region and an invisible region, a conveying device for transporting the carrier plate having the substrate thereon, and a rubbing roller rotating in a clockwise direction at an in-stream direction the same as the predetermined direction of the alignment film of the substrate, the rubbing roller having a cloth thereon to rub the alignment film. The ASPA does not teach or suggest the rubbing roller rotating in a counterclockwise or inverse direction on the alignment film on the substrate. However, it was known in the art, at the time the invention was made, to provide a rubbing roller rotating in a counterclockwise or inverse direction on the alignment film on the substrate as evidenced by Kido et al (see abstract, Fig. 2). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, to provide an inverse rubbing roller as taught by Kido et al in the apparatus of the ASPA in place of the clockwise rotating rubbing roller as an alternative rubbing apparatus for alignment of the crystals on the substrate. It is within the purview of one skilled in the art seeking to align the crystals on the substrate during the manufacture of a liquid crystal display device to utilize either a clockwise or counterclockwise rotating rubbing roller.

With respect to claims 9-14, the glass substrate including any limitations thereto have been given no patentable weight because the substrate has not been read as a structural limitation with respect to the apparatus as claimed.
